Rooisand Desert Ranch is situated on the fringe of the Namib Desert in Namibia's Central Region, at the C 26 between the mountain passes of Gamsberg and Kuiseb, halfway between Windhoek (170 km) and Walvis Bay on the Atlantic coast (190 km).

The farm has a size of some 12.000 ha, a huge area - by European standards. Surrounded by the magnificent scenery of red sand dunes - deposited in distant times by winds from the Kalahari Desert - vast grasslands and rugged mountains, Rooisand Desert Ranch affords its guests a relaxing sojourn with every convenience.

Gamsberg, 2.347 m high and dubbed Namibia's Table Mountain is seen as Rooisand's very "own" mountain.

Guest accommodation, the main building with the kitchen and farm management quarters, the technical buildings, the pool, fitness centre and the tennis courts are all located in the central farm area.

Pool, Lapa und Bar.

The Lapa: during the day Rooisand's dining room alfresco with local and international cuisine, in the evening bar and our guests' meeting place and - on request - big screen open air cinema with Dolby Surround sound system.

The farm's technical equipment is kept far enough away from the guest accommodation as not to disturb your stay.

For satisfying modern communication needs we have a dedicated satellite link. Via radio line it is also available at the holiday chalet, which is a little distance away from the main complex.

Our Rooisand Team lives in its own little village close to the main farm buildings.

For the religious and social needs of the staff a church was built on instruction of the farm's German owner and consecrated by the Bishop of Windhoek. Church services are held on a regular basis.

Guests who would like to attend a service are most welcome to do so.

Next to the church another building was put up. It houses consulting rooms for the travelling "bush doctor", who looks in once a month, and other rooms for social purposes. And it goes without saying that Rooisand has taken out health insurance for its staffers.
